Gunpowder Unaware. From the New York Mail.

From the New York Mail.

It is just possible that some of this fondness for the smell of gunpowder is derived not from the burning of the stuff by generations of hard fighters, but from the glorious and joyous memories of infantile Fourths of July. When we fancy that our senses are remembering things that our grandfathers did (see Pierre Loti's recollection of Martinique, his grandfather's Martinique, in the "Livre de la Pitte et de la Mort") we are probably enjoying a merely physical memory of occurrences in childhood that our conscious brain has forgotten. For that reason the safe and sane Fourth may do more to rid the world of the taste for gunpowder than all the boards of conciliation and arbitration can possibly do. Moreover, the perfume of nitropowder, the present smokeless variety, is not agreeable, as the old black smoke powder was. The passion for powder is something that the vicious modern explosive may help to remove.
